SHOOTING AFFRAY IN WHICH JOHN BLAKE IS SERIOUSLY HURT.

In a drunken fight which occurred last evening on West Sixteenth (old Seventh) street, John Blake, living at 745 North Senate avenue, was perhaps fatally wounded. The exact nature of the trouble which led Abraham Muse, of 264 West Sixteenth street, to shoot him is not well understood, as Blake refused to talk about the case and the man who shot him was not captured until early this morning. A third man who liam Ross, of West Seventeenth street.

Quarrel Over a Woman-Two of the Participants Arrested.

The shooting occurred about 7:30 o'clock on the sidewalk between the saloons, kept by John Heitkam and H. F. Caldwell on West Sixteenth street. All three of the men involved are employes at the United States encaustic tile works. It seems that Blake had been drinking heavily and Muse was also somewhat under the influence of liquor. They met in Heitkam's saloon and quarreled, it is said, over a woman. The quarrel was continued into the street and then Ross came up. He sided in with Blake and according to the reports he and Blake attacked Muse. The men were in the street and crowded Muse back on to the sidewalk toward Caldwell's saloon. Just as they reached the sidewalk at the entrance to a driveway leading into a lot between the two saloons. Muse pulled his revolver and fired one shot. The firing of the shot put an end to the fight. Blake, badly wounded, walked into stupor, but sufficiently awake to tell them | night. nessed the fight and the shooting. He says that two men were attacking Muse and that one of them was cutting at him with a knife or razor when Muse fired. Griffin was under the influence of liquor himself, and his statement may not be accurate. He says Heitkam also saw the shooting but the saloon keeper says he did not There were at least five or six persons who saw the fight and a large number of persons about the saloons who knew who the men involved were; yet it was almost clared that he knew nothing about it. There | which he was prominently mentioned. seemed to be an organized determination to prevent the police gaining any informa-Dr. Tolley, who dressed Blake's wound, was seen at his office shortly after he had sent Blake home. He occupies a little office room, which is decorated with placards containing the following: "Office business, cash," "Don't spit on the floor," "No loafing allowed in this room." He discussed the case in a cold-blooded way. "I don't know anything about how the man was hurt," he said. "I won't let 'em tell me. Every night or two and every Saturday night there is a man or two comes here. Some have their heads busted and others are cut or shot. I never ask them who hurt them or anything about that part of it. I ask them if they have any money to pay with. If they have not they have to go where they can get work done for nothing. If they have money I bring them in and s nut the door and attend to them. This fellow to-night had a wound which may or may not prove fatal. The ball entered in the right side of the back and came out about six inches around the body in front of the abdomen. If the abdominal cavity was not entered he will get well. I did not

Some one suggested to the doctor that, as the bullet had gone clear through the man, it would be useless to try to locate it in the body, but no attention was paid to the suggestion. Dr. Tolley did not seem to believe the ball penetrated the abdominal cavity. When Ross was taken to the police station he said he had gone over to the saloons at the request of Blake's wife. She knew he was drinking and was anxious to get him home. Ross said he would try get Blake to go home. He reached Heitkam's saloon just as Blake and Muse came out. The men were quarreling and Muse struck Blake and then struck him (Ross.) Ross says he struck back at Muse, but missed him. Then, he says, Muse pulled his pistol and fired at Blake while Blake was running away from him. Sergeant Hyland and two patrolmen went to Muse's house in search of him. His sis-ter told the officers that Muse had come home and told her what he had done. He washed some blood off his face and got on his bicycle, saying he was going to the police station to surrender himself. He did not go to the police station, but was captured about 1 o'clock this morning in North Indianapolis by Sergeant Hyland and the patrolmen in the district.

IN MEMORY OF MR. DAILEY

Bar Association Adopts a Memorial-Addresses Made.

A meeting of the Marion county bar memory of the late Hezekiah Dailey was held in the Circuit Court yesterday mornmade by Judges Harvey and Carter, photograph album" of living pictures, Messrs. Hawkins, Elam, Hugg. Pickerill, Ketcham, Rooker and Spahr. Mr. Pickerill served for three years in the war with Mr. Dailey and spoke with much feeling of his career as a soldier. A committee composed on where no chance of loss exists. Deposits of George W. Spahr, John L. McMaster, Jeseph B. Kealing, Ovid B. Jameson and Pliny W. Bartholomew reported the foilowing resolutions:

"Mr. Dailey was born in Fayette county, Indiana, Feb. 10, 1843. He was educated at July 14, 1861, being then seventeen years old He served in the Army of the Potomac for thirty-nine months as a private soldier in Company F. Third Indiana Cavalry. participated in all the movements of that army and in most of its many engagements, in all which he exhibited a splendid ccurage and devotion to duty. He was wounded in the battle of Jack's Shops, receiving a bullet in the face. It is related of him that on this occasion, falling back a little to wipe away the blood, he pressed the ball out of the wound and threw it on the ground. A comrade passing by inquired why he had not kept the ball. The response was, 'If you want one go up where was and you can get plenty of them. After leaving the army Mr. Dailey taught school at Connersville for about two years and then studied law in the office of Benjamin F. Claypool at Connersville, being there admitted to the bar in 1868. He then. . June, 1868, removed to Madison, Ind. where he married Miss Mary E. Powers, of that place, a daughter of Captain O. M. Powers, who had been a lieutenant of Mr. Dailey's company in the army. In April, 1869, he removed with his family to this city, where he has since resided, and practiced law. Upon first coming here he was in partnership in the law practice with George W. Spahr, an old comrade in arms, which partnership continued for about two 'For twenty-eight years Hezekiah Dailey has lived and practiced his profession in this community. He was modest and unassuming. Kindly feeling, a keen sense of justice and right and the strictest integrity Well. I would advise you not to hold were traits of his character. Self-seeking was foreign to his nature. As a lawyer he was especially well-informed in the statutes and the decisions of the State courts, was keen of perception, and discharged his duties with intelligence and fidelity. In his home life his relations were touchingly tender and beautiful; he was a devoted and affectionate husband and father. For those nearest him he had a beautiful tenderness, an exquisite carefulness. The death of an accomplished daughter about a year and a half ago, who had just reached young womanhood, so prostrated him that he never recovered from the shock and his death was no doubt hastened by this sad event. It is well that we should pause even in the busiest hours, when a brother falls, not more as a mark of respect for his memcry than to receive for our own The memory Hezakiah Dailey cannot be other than a precious possession to those who loved him. We are once again in the presence of the mystery of death. Two days ago if Hezeklah Dailey had entered this courtroom, it would have been a commo place incident as little noted as the coming of any one of us to-day. If he should enter that door now what an awe would fall upon us. If he could come back could he not tell us that selfseeking is not wisdom: that the divine precent is love and charity and sacred duty. A good lawyer, a patriotic citizen, a true man, has gone from among us. We mourn

He said that he was treated very well by the postal officials at | Washington and that his application for twenty more carriers in Indianapolis was received and action promised by the first of July. He laid the case before First Assistant Postmaster General Heath, and while he received no assurance that the twenty carriers would be granted, he was given to understand that the Indianapolis postoffice will be well treated. He informed the department of the recent annexation of the suburbs to the city and the need of an addiion to the force. was implicated in the fight leading up to

While in Washington Mr. Sahm learned that Indianapolis was the sixth money order city in the country. The office does as much business as either Brooklyn, Detroit the shooting was also arrested. He is Wilor Pittsburg. The office has always been considered in the same class with Rochester, N. Y., although Indianapolis had one l hundred thousand more money orders than Rochester last year.

Gave Him a Divorce. Jacob Spielberger was yesterday granted a divorce from Bertha Spielberger, who, if all allegations are true, must have led her husband a merry chase. The Spielbergers reside in West Indianapolis. The plaintiff's chief complaint was that his wife beat him with a broom stick and spit in his face. He claimed she deserted him three months ago, taking his three children with her.

They Were Mismated. Among the divorces granted in the Superior Court yesterday were: Hettie Moormon from John Moorman, Engene Watkins from Rebecca Watkins, Mary Hutzebaugh from Frank Hutzebaugh, Jacob Spielberger from Bertha Speilberger, Emma Hughes from Frank Hughes, Mattie R. Fultz from Owen L. Fultz, Arthur E. Miller from Carrie Miller.

Change of Venue Granted. James Moxey, charged with grand larceny and embezzlement, came into court yesterday and asked and was granted a change of venue from Judge McCray's court. Moxey was indicted on information brought before the grand jury by the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company.

Has a Sorry Story. Martha E. Smith, in a suit for divorce from Frank L. Smith, relates a sorry story. Cruel treatment is alleged and the plaintiff avers that her husband has often been guilty of improper conduct with persons whose names she does not know.

are having a good deal of trouble with people who decline to give in their lists of taxables. Although the majority of these people have only poll tax to settle, there are some who have taxable property, but refuse to give the assessor any satisfaction. The law provides that a 50 per cent. penalty may be assessed in cases of this character. Yesterday Assessor Saulcy consulted with the county attorney as to the advisability of having those who refuse to give in their lists brought before the Circuit Court in addition to assessing them the 50 per cent, penalty.

A FIN DE SIECLE DEVIL. Marie Corelli's Description of the Modern Satanie Individual.

New York Journal. don stage. He is taken from the pages of Marie Corelli's lurid and grotesque novel, "The Sorrows of Satan," which, in its dramatized form, has been played at the Shaftesbury Theater. The devil, whom Marie Corelli seeks to portray, is the sort of person who would best be able to accomplish the ruin of souls n modern society. No one, of course, would be led astray nowadays by the appearance of a Mephistopheles in scarlet hose and doublet. The Mephistopheles of Marie Corelli is perfectly dressed in the modern style, superbly handsome and highly acimplished and boundlessly rich. He bears the name of Prince Lucio Rimanez. He is, in fact, the devil of the mediaeval drama altered to suit modern conditions. The idea is not a bad one, but the general verdict is that Marie Corelli is not equal to it. It will be interesting to read the novelist's conception of the personal appearance of the devil which the actor has endeavored to realize: "I am myself an average, good height, but he was fully half a head taller than I if not more than that, and as I looked straightly at him I thought I had never seen so much beauty and intellectuality combined in the outward personality of any

"The finely shaped head denoted both power and wisdom, and was nobly poised on such shoulders as might have befitted a Hercules-the countenance was a pure oval and singularly pale, his complexion intensifying the almost flery brilliancy of the full, dark eyes, which had in them a curious and wonderfully attractive look of mingled mirth and misery. "The mouth was, perhaps, the most telling feature in this remarkable face-set in the perfect curve of beauty it was yet firm, determined and not too small, thus escaping effeminacy-and I noted that in repose it expressed bitterness, disdain, and even ruelty. But with the light of a smile upon it, it signified, or seemed to signify, something more subtle than any passion to which we can give a name, and already, with the rapidity of a lightning flash, caught myself wondering what that mystic, undeclared something might be.

FAITH CURE A GOOD THING.

In Some Diseases, but It Is a Failure in Stomach Troubles.

Mere faith will not digest your food fo you will not give you an appetite, will not increase your flesh and strengthen your nerves and heart, but Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do these things, because they are composed of the elements of digestion, they contain the juices, acids and peptones necessary to the digestion and assimilation Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest food if placed in a jar or bottle in water heated to 98 degrees, and they will do i much more effectively when taken into the stomach after meals, whether you have married to Charles Daugherty, a Big Four faith that they will or not. engineer.
